Documentary Series

JULY 18, 1940

The mighty German Army is perched on the north shore of conquered France, peering hungrily across the English Channel.

In England, all hope lies with the Royal Navy to stop Hitler's forces from crossing the channel, but they are without allies and overwhelmed by the combined navies of Germany, Italy, and Vichy France.

Having left the bulk of their war material in Dunkirk, the British Army is in desperate need of food and supplies. Winston Churchill depends on President Roosevelt, a man he's never met, to provide the material needed to keep fighting, but to receive these essentials, merchant ships must cross the U-Boat infested waters of the Atlantic. To make matters worse, Britain is running out of money to pay the Americans for their support.

In his London bunker, Churchill knows he is losing the war. But he's been secretly working on a contingency plan that few people even know exists. Its codename is Operation: Fish.

By the time it's successfully complete, the entirety of Britain's wealth, nearly $50 Billion of today's dollars, would arrive safely and secretly in Canada. It pays for Britain's survival and is, to this day, the largest movement of wealth in human history.

THE SERIES

Based on the book by peerless historian Alfred Draper, this riveting documentary series tells the never-before-seen story of how the United Kingdom, United States, and Canada banded together to ensure the defeat of Nazism. Throughout this compelling limited series, we'll travel back to the chaos of the Norwegian invasion, the Mediterranean stand off of the world's most powerful navies, and the vicious battlegrounds of the North Atlantic to understand the true cost, both financial and human, of the secret war for Europe's gold.

As if ripped from today's headlines, where we see the vital importance of our money and material in the success of Ukraine's battle for survival, this story reminds us of our own hour of need and how nations devoted to democracy found help in each other when all hope seemed lost.
